Abstract:

We extend the work of Dimitrov and Khalil [5], and Harn and Steutel [6] on the characterization of exponential distribution in queueing system by allowing customers with interrupted service at server's failure period to withdraw. A new characterization property is found in respect of the withdrawal effect.